The screenshot displays the debug it IDE interface, which is used for debugging JavaScript code. The interface is divided into several panels:

- Parser Stack: A table showing the current state of the parser stack. The Symbol column lists various expressions and statements, while the Value column shows their corresponding JavaScript objects. The MemberExpression is currently selected.
- Possible Actions: A table showing the actions that can be taken next. The Symbol column lists <identifier> and identifierName, and the Action column lists Shift and Shift.
- Input: A text area showing the source code being parsed. The code is a JavaScript function that returns a list of events. The code is as follows:

return L.stash(this); // dojo.NodeList
}

nl.events = [
  // summary:
  //   list of all DOM events used in NodeList
  "blur", "focus", "change", "click", "error", "keydown", "keypress",
  "keyup", "load", "mousedown", "mouseenter", "mouseleave", "mousemove",
  "mouseout", "mouseover", "mouseup", "submit"
];

// FIXME: pseudo-doc the above automatically generated on-event functions

// syntactic sugar for DOM events
d.forEach(nl.events, function(evt){
- Stack: A table showing the current call stack. The Symbol column lists the function names, and the Value column shows the current state of the stack. The JSParser(SmaCCGLRParser) is currently selected.
- Source: A text area showing the source code of the selected function. The code is as follows:

self.resetState();
[tryAllStates and: [ self isEOFToken ]
  if true: [ ~self processEOFToken ].
currentToken isPattern
  if true: [ ~self splitOnPatternToken ].
[ actions := self actionsForCurrentToken;
actions isEmpty
  if true: [ self killState.
            currentToken := nil.
            ~self ].
2 to: actions size do: [ i | self splitWithActions: {actions at: i} ].

An American flag icon is visible in the top right corner of the interface.

We modernize legacy systems

Our clients want to leverage their legacy systems but they don't know how to change them. They've often tried unsuccessfully in the past. In some cases, their business critical systems have become black boxes and are even coded in languages that no longer exist. We start with helping them see their systems. Once they do, we help them change their systems confidently.

Daywork: Student job companies pairing

The screenshot displays the Daywork website, a platform for pairing students with companies for daywork. The interface includes a top navigation bar with icons for email, calendar, notifications, and a user profile. A banner at the top shows three images of students working. The left sidebar contains navigation links: 'nabídka brigád', 'můj filtr', 'oblíbené', 'mám zájem', 'moje brigády', 'náhled práce', 'úprava profilu', 'pozvat přátele', and 'odhlásit se'. The main content area is titled 'Oblíbené' and 'NOVÉ BRIGÁDY'. It features three job listings, each with a company logo, job title, company name, location, and hourly wage. A Czech flag icon is overlaid on the left side of the listings.
